DR. GLADDEN ON ANTICATHOLIC CRUSADE.

For many years Rev. Washington Gladden, pastor of the Congregational church in Columbus, Ohio, has been recognized as one of the foremost Protestant ministers in America. His work as a pastor has been crowned with marked success and he has been a militant fighter for social reforms in the community. Besides his preaching and pastoral work, he has found time to write numerous books on social and religious topics. His learning and piety and his loyalty to Protestantism can not be questioned by anybody who knows anything about him. In an article in Harper's Weekly last July Dr. Gladden discussed the anti-Catholic crusade, in part, as follows:

"The combination of hate is already well started, and it will probably sweep over the land. No argument could extinguish it."

"There are millions of Protestants who are incapable of believing anything but evil of Roman Catholics. Traditional racism colors all their vision wherever the name of the pope is mentioned. But there are a good many other Protestants, I trust, who are capable of reason and justice, and to whom I venture to make two or three suggestions:

"Whenever you hear any of these harrowing tales about the sinister and sanguinary plots of the Roman Catholics, never let one go unchallenged. insist that the narrator give his authorities and furnish his evidences. See that the matter is thoroughly investigated, and publish the facts with the names of those who have reported the charges."

"Take every opportunity you can get to talk with your Roman Catholic neighbors and friends about the relations of the churches. Don't abuse them or cast suspicious glances on them when you meet them; don't treat them as if they were spies or emissaries of some malign power; shake hands with them; get acquainted with them and talk over the whole situation in a friendly way. We may have some difficult problems to settle in our relation with them, but let us meet them not as enemies, but as friends."

"Instead of listening to horrible tales of what the Catholics are doing in distant places, sit down and make out a list of all the Catholic men and women you know in business, in professional life, in the philanthropies in society, in the shops and factories, in the kitchens; put down their names and think them over, and see whether you will be able to convince yourselves that these men and women are capable of doing the kind of things which these tales attribute to them. How many of these people do you think are plotting to rob you of your liberties, or to murder you in your beds? These are Roman Catholics, the Roman Catholics not of the dark ages or of the sixteenth century, but the Roman Catholics of today. And whenever you talk about Roman Catholics, in public or private, remember that those are the people you are talking about."

"It might be well for the people who are capable of putting two and two together to remember that the danger of the clerical domination of this country, whether by Congregationalists or Catholics, is not imminent. The last Roman Catholic paper I opened alleged that there are seventy-five millions of non-Catholics in the United States. That would mean that there can be no more than twenty or twenty-five millions of Catholics. In any attempt to impose clerical rule, the Protestant forces would find themselves strongly supported by the great majority of the secret orders, and by the entire socialist contingent of our population. There does not appear to be any adequate reason why seventy-five millions should be shuddering with fear that twenty millions are about to subjugate or exterminate them. The mood which yields to such a panic is the reverse of the hero."

"The fact is that we have got to learn to live together in this country—Protestants and Catholics. If either party should undertake to exterminate the other, the process would be somewhat difficult. The only question is whether we shall live together in peace or in enmity. If we are to have peace, we must abide the things that make for peace; each party must be ready to see the good side of the other; most fears to put the best and not the worst construction on the words and deeds of the other; must avoid all bitter and uncharitable judgments; must put away all thoughts of domination. We must be friends, Protestants and Catholics. No other relation is conceivable. And there is no worse enemy of Christ or of his country than the man who seeks to inflame and poison the minds of either Protestants or Catholics with suspicion and fears and resentments and animosity toward the other."

Also, the business of the war map makers has picked up since Italy got into the game.

El Shimp says he notices that we always have too much moisture when the rainfall is excessive.

And it's at least an even bet that we'll have a fair crop of weeds if we get another good shower sometime between now and next fall.

Well spoken, Chief. Now go after those crazy speeders and jay drivers.

Wonder if those burglars picked Mr. Spencer for an easy mark just because he bought Magic Grass yesterday.

Pretty soon a day that passes without rain in Oklahoma will call for a story with a scare headline.

It is wrong to steal flowers. Besides, it is a knock at the "city beautiful" which should be encouraged.

With all the "a-sanges" that the war office report from time to time, it would seem that they ought to get somewhere.

As far as the school kids are concerned, all the mighty issues of war pale into insignificance before the all important question, "Did you pass?"

Personally, we wouldn't mind seeing the weather forecaster hang out for a few days that old-fashion "general fair" sign which he displayed all last summer.

As a matter of fact, it is unreasonable to expect a man to be enthusiastic over the new band when the fellow next door is practicing on his cornet.

It wouldn't be so bad if he could play a "tune."

Some Forms of Rheumatism Curable.

Rheumatism is a disease characterized by pains in the joints and in the muscles. The most common forms are: Acute and chronic rheumatism, rheumatic headaches, sciatic rheumatism and lumbago. All of these types can be helped absolutely by applying some good Liniment that penetrates. An application of Sloan's Liniment two or three times a day to the affected part will give instant relief. Sloan's Liniment is good for pain, and especially rheumatic pain, because it penetrates to the seat of the trouble, soothes the afflicted part and draws the pain. "Sloan's Liniment is all medicine." Get a 25c bottle now. Keep it handy in case of emergency.—Adv.
